LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

Frances Clayborne, Testator

Parents, friends, and teachers, on behalf of the Senior Class of 1951, I humbly ask you to pay close attention as I read the last will and testament of the said class.

We, the Seniors of 1951, still being of sound bodies and fairly sound minds, do hereby testify this to be our very last will and testament.

ITEM I: To Mr. Vickers, our beloved principal, we give and bequeath our appreciation for his inspiration and kindness.

ITEM II. To the faculty we leave our most sincere gratitude for their help and guidance throughout our high school career.

ITEM III. To the students we leave our many talents and great wisdom.

ITEM IV. We wish to give and bequeath the following, which may seem rather trifling, but we trust that they will be accepted as valuable assets:

Ralph Blalock leaves his fine physique to Charles Currin.

Wilbur Clayton leaves his cute ways to Francis Hart, Bobby Talley and Bobby Watkins. The Daniel brothers bestow their singing ability upon Tom Newton and Billy Paynter.

Weldon Currin leaves with a joyous heart.

Peter Strother leaves his basketball skill to George Thomas and Eugene Woodlief.

John Parham leaves Janet with a sad heart.

Frances Clayborne bestows her athletic skill upon Dottie Harris.

Margaret Seabolt leaves her basketball ability to Hattie Moore.

Annie Daniel leaves her dancing ability to Joyce Knott.

Shirley Harris and Geoffrey Knott leave their studious ways to Lila Haney and Grier Park.

Jean Hester leaves her blushing ways to Jean Hughes and Alex Hancock.

Ruth Hedgepeth leaves her ability to do everything so well to Gilbert Ragland and Patsy Brummitt.

Gilbert Averette leaves his height to Jaxie Morton and Albert Clay.

Richard Beasley and Ruth Burwell leave their bashfulness to Ambrose Brooks, Jessie Carroll and James Partin.

Sam Finch leaves his football skill to Jackie Jones, William Yeargin, and Hurley Newton.

Harold Currin wishes to leave nothing behind. Eloise Gill and Mary Anne Floyd leave their pertness to Helen Tatsy, Anne Crymes and James Overton.

Margaret Morris endows Dan Critcher with her dependability.

Upon Homer Hobgood, John Dean bestow his many talents.

Wiley Oakley and Thomas Parrott will their quiet ways to Joyce Yeargin and Robert Lloyd.

Ralph Matthews and Lionel Burnette leave their talent of going to sleep in English to Franklin Oakes and Preston Johnson.

Barbara Kittrell McGinnis and Lillian Lemmons bestow their beautiful blonde hair upon Blanche Cheatham and Ruth Jones.

Ruth Wilson leaves her friendly disposition to Julia and Leslie Hall.

Frances Parham leaves her willingness to do her assignments to Donald Suitt and Dan Jones.

Marion Cash bestows her courteous ways upon Violet Overton and Jane Knott.

Julian Hughes leaves his talent of keeping quiet to Dorothy Matthews, Arthur Wray and Ralston Powell.

Brodie Newton leaves his school bus to Maxie Parham.

Shields Parham and Edith Ashley leave their witty sayings to Juanita Hughes and Peggy Paynter.

Elizabeth Blalock leaves her good sportsmanship to Donald Leavister, and Barbara Lloyd.

Nat Burwell leaves his place in the chemistry lab to whoever can fill it.

Virginia Hayes leaves her ability to win friends to Phoebe Burnette and Betty Jean Wilson.

Margaret Dean leaves her place at the typewriter to Dixie Boyd.

Audrey Humphries leaves her love for Oak Hill to whosoever wants it.

Witnessed this, the twenty-ninth day of May, in the year one thousand nine hundred and fifty-one.

SENIOR PROPHECY

By John Dean

The date on the newspaper was June 12, 1961. As I looked through it, my attention was drawn to a familiar name—Margaret Morris—who was editor of the “Daily Owl.” Margaret, I recalled, was in my graduating class back in 1951 at Oxford High School. Then a little further over, on the society page, I noticed that Margaret Seabolt and Sam Finch were to be married. A blanket invitation was extended, so I decided to go and see Sam who had just returned from overseas after being called into the Army immediately following his graduation from high school. I wanted to see most of my old classmates who I knew would be at the wedding, so I started immediately.

After a few hours of preparation I caught a ride to Oxford with one of my old classmates, Thomas Parrott, who was going out to Texas to bring back a load of cattle for “Averette-Currin Beef Farm” which was owned and operated by Gilbert Averette and Weldon Currin.

On arrival, I went to the new ultramodern Hotel Oxford. As I went in, I was greeted by the manager, Lionel Burnette. Lionel was going to attend the wedding, but first he had to go by “Harold’s Men’s Shop” to pick up his new suit that was being altered.

As we went out of the hotel, I was amazed at the considerable speed that an ambulance was making down the street. When I found out that Ralph Matthews was the driver, all my doubts as to its speed vanished. It seemed that Ralph was working for “Daniel Funeral Home” of which Frank Daniel was the owner. When we entered “Harold’s Men’s Shop,” I saw the owner, Harold Currin, and Wilbur Clayton, who was a clerk. We all decided to go to the wedding together, so we got into Harold’s new Plymouth. Harold pushed the starter, but the Plymouth wouldn’t start, so he called up “Hughes’ Garage” which was operated by Julian Hughes. In a little while Julian had the motor running, so we piled in again and went down to Colonial Stores Super Market to get some rice to throw at the bride. I dashed into the store and saw Wiley Oakley who was now manager. He gave me the rice and again we were on our way to the wedding.

On the way, I was informed that Audrey Humphries was still trying to “land” a man and that Naomi Johnson was an actress in Hollywood, while Ann Daniel was working in New York teaching models how to model. As we stopped at the church, I just had time to speak to Geoffrey Knott, pastor of the First Baptist Church, before going in. The service was just beginning with Shirley Harris playing an organ prelude. Looking around, I saw some more late arrivals—Barbara McGhinnis and her five little boys. Bobby Daniel sang a song, “I Love You Truly,” and Sam came in accompanied by his best man, John Parham, who, they told me, was football coach at Oxford High. It was a nice service, but I was getting pretty hungry so I was looking forward to the reception at the new Woman’s Club.

When the service was over and rice had been thrown, we went to the reception. Between cups of punch, I saw many of my old classmates. There was Brodie Newton who was a bus driver for Greyhound, Pete Strother who was basketball coach at Carolina, and Frances Clayborne who was a Physical Education teacher at Oxford High. I also spoke to Frissy Parham who was a French instructor at Harvard and Edith Ashley who had taken Miss Boyd’s place as English teacher at our alma mater. Edith told me that Ruth Burwell, Shields Parham, and Margaret Dean had joined the ranks of the happily married. There was also Ruth Hedgepeth who told me she was stenographer for Blackwell Tobacco Company in Tennessee.

Then I saw Lillian Lemmons and Jean Hester who had settled down to married life. As I went back to the punch bowl, I found Marion Cash who told me that Eloise Gill was secretary for a candy company up north. She also said that Mary Ann Floyd was married and living in Raleigh where Nelson was State Highway Commissioner, and that Ruth Wilson and Elizabeth Blalock had gone to Paris to study the latest fashions.

It was time to leave so I started out the door only to meet Nat Burwell who told me he was the owner of a fruit produce company in Florida. He asked me where I had been the last ten years, so I told him I was still in Wake Forest College so deeply intent upon getting my diploma that I had not been getting around much for the past ten years.

CLASS POEM

by Eloise Gill

Now that twelve long years of work is done
And the parting time has finally come,
We bid farewell to high school days
To our old and familiar ways:
To the teachers so good and kind
To the school events we're leaving behind;
All these memories in our hearts will dwell
Long after the toll of the parting bell.

We leave you now with a smile on our face,
Knowing that others will soon take our place.
The road of life is open before us:
We're ready to travel that road at last
And are ready to meet with each new task;
It is you, Oxford High, who have made us strong—
So farewell, seniors cannot linger long.

The Annual Staff is a comparatively new organization in the school, since this is only the second year that we have produced a yearbook. In order to raise funds with which to publish the "Oxonian," the Staff sponsored the annual sale of magazine subscriptions. This year the Staff has endeavored to publish a book which the school will be proud of and which will bring much pleasure to the students in future years.

Student of the Month

News came to the "Owl" too late for much publicity, but starting in December, the Student Council is sponsoring "The Student Of The Month". A person is to be nominated from each homeroom, for outstanding abilities, and voted on by the Council.

Choral Club Present Concert

The Oxford High School Choral Clubs, with Virgil L. director, presented a Christmas concert on December 14, in the high school auditorium to a large and enthusiastic audience. The music group presented a varied program which pleased the audience. Folk songs, classical music, and various civic songs were included. The music groups also participated in the district Music Festival which is held each spring in one of the groups have been selected for the State Festival which will be held in Raleigh.

Hold Elections

On December 30, the Oxford High School held elections. John Dean was elected President, Frances Clayb Testator, Eloise Gill, Class Officer. The seniors chose red as their class colors and the flower. A committee was appointed to submit a plan to sponsor a square dance.

The class officers for were elected earlier in the year: Bobby Daniel, president, Geoffrey Knott, vice-president, Shirley Harris, secretary, and Francis Clayborne, treasurer.

Plans are underway for the seniors to sponsor a square dance.

OXFORD 4-H CLUB

President
Sarah Baker

Vice President
Sam Daniel

Secretary and Treasurer
Nelson Brooks

The 4-H Club endeavors to give rural boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 21 training in better practices of agriculture and homemaking. It presents broader phases of community organization and the finer and more significant things of life.

The Club meets once a month and has a demonstration given by the County or Home Demonstration agent.

Every 4-H Club member has a project and may enter state and national contests. Club members from time to time put on demonstrations related to their projects and studies of farm life. Mr. William Jones is the adviser.

Oxford High music activities are carried on by the Mixed Chorus, the Girls' Glee Club, and the Boys' Glee Club. During this school year these groups have presented outstanding public programs for the P.T.A., the D.A.R., and the Kiwanis Club. This activity is in the form of performance projects in which specific areas of music study culminate in a civic program. The Christmas programs for a number of years have been outstanding entertainments. The music clubs attend the regional and state music contests where they have won outstanding recognition.

ATHLETICS

BR

Coach "Bob" Culton

Miss Crinkley

Mr. Walters

Mr. R. C. Coulton, Director of the Athletic Department of Oxford High School, has served for the past five years as head coach of the basketball, football, and baseball teams and teacher of health and physical education. Serving with him on the coaching staff are Mr. H. C. Walters, Assistant Coach, and Miss Janet Crinkley, Director of the girls' division of the Athletic Department. Since 1949, Mr. Walters has served as Coach of the Junior Varsity basketball team and in 1950 he became the Jayvee football mentor. Miss Crinkley began her teaching career in Oxford in 1948 and for the past two years has coached the recently organized girls' basketball team. This year's football and basketball seasons ended quite successfully because of the great contributions made by these three coaches. We also owe much to Mr. Culton and Miss Crinkley for their fine work in developing our vastly improved physical education program. Our coaches say that their work in carrying out this program has been greatly aided by our new gymnasium which was completed in 1949.
